Vermont Election

[illegible] Sept 1—The result of the election [illegible] shows that the Republican State ticket [illegible] majority, and the city gives a large plurality [illegible] ticket for State Senators but [illegible] Judge Smalley (Dem) Representative in the [illegible]ture by 98 majority. This is the first time a [illegible] has been elected representative from Bur[illegible] since 1848. The regular Republican ticket [illegible] county officers is probably elected in Chittenden county showing a heavy temperance bolt in a portion of the ticket.

Luke P. Poland has "a Hard Row to Hoe."

WHITE RIVER JUNCTION, Vt, Sept 1—The vote [illegible] very light except in the Second Congressional [illegible] (Poland's) where there was a bolt. At mid[illegible] returns were received from only seventy two [illegible] representing also one-third of the vote of [illegible] state in full. [illegible] Not for a score or more of [illegible] have voters been so refractory or voting [illegible] The bolt in the Second District is a [illegible] one, and has probably resulted in no choice. [illegible] towns gave Poland 8116, Dennison bolt[illegible] 2201, Davenport (Dem) and scat[illegible] 1301. There are one hundred and fifty two [illegible] in the District, and there is still room for the [illegible] of Poland. This same refractory spirit has [illegible] manifested to a considerable extent in coun[illegible] and even in towns. In the latter regular [illegible] have been subjected to some disregard—[illegible] holding candidates being elected [illegible] Peck 14 [illegible] county [illegible] State Senator.

[illegible] Sept [illegible] of the election [illegible] indications are that the falling [illegible] majorities from the vote of 1872 [illegible] on the State ticket though several [illegible] Representatives [illegible] Representative by [illegible] Brandon and Burlington also elect Dem[illegible] small majority. There is little doubt of Poland's re-election in the [illegible] District.

[illegible] is elected by a large majority in the [illegible] and Hendee (Rep) is re-elected by a [illegible] in the Third District.

[illegible] Republican nominee for State [illegible] Rutland county is defeated.

Work of the Ohio Republican State Convention.

[illegible] Sept [illegible]—The Republican State Con[illegible] nominated the following ticket: For Secre[illegible] Wikoff; Supreme Judge long [illegible] short term W W Johnson; [illegible] Commissioner Thomas W Harvey; Clerk [illegible] Rodney; Member of Board [illegible] Stephen R Hosmer. These are all [illegible] except Johnson, who is nominated [illegible] Judge Stone who resigned.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

CALIFORNIA.

From San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2—The steamer Tuscarora left here just one year ago to-day to survey the line and make soundings for the cable to Japan. The first attempt from Cape Flattery was abandoned on account of the lateness of the season, and she made soundings on and off the coast from Cape Flattery to San Diego. From that port she struck out for Honolulu, making soundings as she went. From Honolulu she proceeded to Yokohama via Bonin Islands. The deepest water found on this line was 287 fathoms. Two lines were started from the coast of Japan, but abandoned on account of the great depth of water. The third line was found feasible and the line was run to Kuril Island, one of the Aleutian group. Thence it run to Ounalaska and from there to Cape Flattery. The greatest depth of water found on this line was five and one fourth miles.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1—The fire this afternoon in Bernal Heights destroyed the residence of a man named Fay. At first it was thought the City and County Hospital was on fire, and a general alarm was sounded, causing a good deal of excitement in the city. Fay's loss is probably $3,000. No other buildings were injured.

The weather has been very warm all day and is sultry and close to-night.

The receipts at the Custom House for the month of August were $512,876.30.

The United States cable sounding steamer Tuscarora from Japan is coming up the harbor; also the ship Roswell Sprague, from Puget Sound.

A letter from Australia to the Alta states that on the 11th of July, near Bird Island, the American bark Sierra Nevada and brig George H Peak collided. The brig sank immediately, but the officers and crew were rescued by the bark. The brig was bound for Melbourne, the bark for San Francisco.

Overland passenger—Samuel Case, Oregon.

In the Municipal Court to-day, in the case of Geo. D. Roberts accused by [illegible] Treadwell of having obtained $80,000 from him by means of fraudulent representations concerning the Burro Burro mine, owing to the absence of witnesses for the people, the Court directed the jury to acquit the prisoner, which they did.

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 2—A man named John Smith was killed at Holcomb valley on Monday night about 12 o'clock by a man named Wm. Bonner. The two men had been drinking and started for Bonner's house and passed by a window where a man was sitting and stopped near the house, when the man heard a heavy blow and a man fall. He ran out and found Smith lying on the ground with his head mashed. Bonner was brought to town and is now in jail.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2—The jury in the Gonzalez murder case has not yet agreed on a verdict.

The Mechanics' Fair pavilion is thronged again to-night.

The National Gold Bank in this city has declared a dividend of 1 per cent, payable on the 1st.

The weather changed suddenly this afternoon, to-night it is foggy and cold.

Dr. Albert Bold died suddenly last night at his room on Market street. The cause of his death is unknown. He was a native of Virginia and 68 years of age.

The receipts at the Fair to date are over $35,000.

Interior California.

GRASS VALLEY, Sept. 1—The directors of the Nevada county narrow gauge railroad met to-day and decided to go ahead with the building of the road. Proposals for contracts will be opened immediately. The bonds will be issued at 8 per cent. The contracts will be paid one half in cash and the balance in bonds. The subscription books are to be kept open for additional subscriptions. The time of breaking ground has not been determined upon but no doubt will be soon. The railroad is now an assured fact.

LIVERMORE, Sept. 2—Large quantities of grain are being stored daily, but very little is sold on account of low prices.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 2—The saloons are all closed to-day. The Supervisor's election is progressing very quietly.

An Alden fruit drying machine is to commence operations soon. It is believed that Los Angeles fruit dried by this process will command a premium.

The coast railway scheme is attracting great attention and stock is being taken by all classes of citizens.

SAN RAFAEL, Sept. 2—The Supervisors' election to-day resulted as follows: Full vote, Jas. Ross, 225; W. L. Barnard, 150. Ross' majority 66.

MARYSVILLE, Sept. 2—The election for Supervisor in the First and Second Wards of this city resulted in a majority of 17 for Warren Green.

J. C. Robinson, traveling agent for Engelbrecht & Levy, of San Francisco, was arrested and lodged in the station house on a charge of illegal voting. It is alleged he voted for Supervisor under the registered name of Rosenburg.

A fire broke out at 4 o'clock this morning on Virgin alley, which destroyed three frame buildings, belonging to Mrs. H. Newman, insurance, $500. A strong north wind was blowing, and for a time a serious conflagration was threatened.

CALISTOGA, Sept. 2—The greatest possible excitement has prevailed here for the last three or four days, occasioned by the discovery of three distinct silver bearing ledges west of Calistoga silver mine. The croppings are bold and assays prove the existence of gold and silver in large quantities. Between two and three hundred claims have been located and the Recorder and his deputies are busy recording and surveying claims. About 100 prospectors are daily seen climbing mount St. Helena, and the success of the Calistoga company brings new arrivals by every train. The first clean up of the Calistoga mill will be on the 15th inst.

SANTA ROSA, Sept. 2—To-day a motion for a new trial for Geiger was argued before Judge Wallace, who took the matter under advisement until to-morrow at 2 P. M.

At about a quarter past 2 P. M. a fire broke out in a stable belonging to Mr. Perkinson of the American Exchange, burning it and damaging a new building belonging to [illegible] Korbie & Bro. The damage to Mr. Perkinson is $300 and to Korbie & Bro. $200. No insurance. The fire was caused by boys smoking cigarettes in the barn among the hay.

NEVADA.

A Cold-blooded Murder.

WINNEMUCCA, Sept. 2—E. Brooks, foreman of the N. & N. Telegraph Company, has just arrived in town and gives the particulars of a most cold blooded murder committed at Rattlesnake station, on the line of the N. W. Stage Company. A young man, a stranger, came into camp stating that he had walked from the Owyhee river that day, was tired and hungry and wanted to get work and something to eat. The cook of the camp told him to sit down and the boys would soon be in to supper. Robt. Douglass, hostler for the N. W. Stage Company, invited the man over to his cabin to eat with him. He went with Douglass. Soon after Douglass ran him out of his cabin with a shot gun. The man came over to the camp and he asked the cook what kind of a man Douglass was, saying he invited him to eat and then chased him out with a gun. As he asked this question Douglass came out and said "You son of a b—h, you are talking about me." At that moment Douglass shot, the charge taking effect in the neck, severing the jugular vein, the man dying almost instantly. The cook told Douglass, "You have killed the man." He said, "I don't care. I will kill another one." Immediately after Douglass took one of the stage horses and rode off, and it is known that the Stage Company assisted him into Silver City, and Mr. Parker, Division agent, paid Douglass off and let him go. From a tax receipt found in the murdered man's pocket given in Owyhee District, his name was found to be H. Walker, also money to the amount of $160 in gold notes, which was sent to P. Burr, contractor of the telegraph line. The murdered man was buried back of the station, where Mr. Brooks says were other graves, and also says this is Douglass' fourth victim.

Fire in Albany.

ALBANY, Sept. 2—A fire broke out this afternoon on the corner of Lyon and First streets in a house owned by Mr. Rubarts and occupied by Mrs. Brown as a private boarding house. The fire originated from a defective flue. By the promptness and exertions of the fire company the flames were soon subdued. Total loss about $250; no insurance.

THE TERRITORIES.

Santa Fe, New Mexico, is complaining of scarcity of water for irrigation.

The Mesilla (New Mexico) Land Office is without a Register and Receiver.

The capital stock of the Washington Oyster Company, of Oysterville, is to be increased.

The Washington Territorial University at Seattle will be opened for the fall term on the 14th of this month.

Goats, sheep and horses are in demand in New Mexico just now for threshing wheat in the old Egyptian style.

The Grand Lodge of Masons, the Presbyterian Synod and the Republican Central Territorial Committee are in session at Olympia.

Four or five large quartz ledges yielding abundantly of fine gold, were discovered lately about forty miles east of Warren's diggings, Idaho.

The Indians on the Fort Stanton Reservation, New Mexico, are showing signs of dissatisfaction and arrogance and trouble is expected on that account.

A great deal of anxiety prevails along the whole of the Pecos stage line, New Mexico, on account of the threatening attitude of the hostile Indians in that section.

A petition is out for signatures at Olympia asking that the southern terminal point of the Puget Sound and Victoria mail route, No. [illegible] 406, be [illegible] at Olympia.

It is reported that nine Chinamen were drowned in an attempt to navigate Snake river in a small boat, last week. One only out of ten escaped to tell the tale.

On last Monday quite a train of wagons left Walla Walla for Los Angeles. Among the families going, ten in number, were those of Hon. A. D. O'Bryant and A. Kyger.

The Courier is happy to state that Mr. Ramos of Swantown, after falling the distance of 35 feet off of a building, and in his flight tearing down staging, and doing considerable damage to lumber that happened to be in his way, this morning confessed that he might have hurt himself if there had been about 60 feet further to have fallen.

At Walla Walla last spring bacon went begging for buyers at 7 cents per pound, and was bought up in large quantities at that figure and sent below. Now it is very scarce and sells from wagons at 10 cents. Some of those who shipped their bacon out of the country last spring wish they had it back again, as they would do better if they had it to supply the home demand.

Captain Munson, who is an excellent architect, has drawn the plan of the Methodist Church about to be erected in Boise City. The building will be 55 feet long by 35 feet wide. The tower, 12 feet square at the base and about 68 feet high, stands on the southeast corner of the front of the building, projecting half its size each way. The church will contain seats for about 300 persons. The general style of the architecture is Gothic.

The Walla Walla Union of last Saturday says: "A lady just from the Touchet reports that before she came in, a report was in circulation that a lot of drunken Indians had called at a house some five or six miles from Waitsburg and finding no one at home but some children dragged and drove them from the house and then pillaged it of whatever they took a fancy to. A little gospel and buck shot would do these lambs a power of good."

The Walla Walla Union says: "Wheat in small lots is now being shipped down the river, but shipping is not fairly commenced yet. The price paid here is forty cents per bushel, the same as last season." It looks a little strange that wheat should remain the same here both seasons, while the cost of shipment is the same and yet the price in Portland last year was a great deal higher than it is now. Shippers must have made a good thing then, or else they will lose money now.

The severest wind storm known there for a long time visited Boise City on Thursday of last week. Considerable damage was done. Peach trees loaded with delicious fruit were blown down. Many of the cottonwood trees along Grove creek and in other parts of the city were literally taken up by the roots. Mr. Frey's new house, corner of Idaho and Fourth streets, was moved several inches from its original position. The storm lasted but a short time and was followed by a glorious shower of rain, and all nature is again smiling and beautiful.

SUPREME COURT.

THIRTEENTH DAY.

SEPTEMBER 1, 1874.

Court met pursuant to adjournment. Present: Hon. B. F. Bonham, Chief Justice; P. P. Prim, L. L. McArthur and John Burnett, Associate Justices.

State of Oregon, respondent, vs. Thos. Gerrand, appellant; argued by John M. Gearin for the appellant and Boise and Whitney for the State. Case submitted.

Ordered that the Court stand adjourned until Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock.

A ROMANTIC STORY UNEARTHED IN COURT.—The trial of a will case frequently brings into public notice facts of a very interesting character. In a recent case in Connecticut it was shown that one Robert Roberts was a sea captain at the time of the reign of terror in France and that when about to sail from its shores a wealthy Frenchman applied for passage to this country to slip away from the guillotine. His effects including $100,000 in gold were shipped, but before the Frenchman could get aboard he was taken and beheaded. Roberts cleared quickly for home, settled down in Mcfield, and invested the money which had so strangely fallen into his possession. By his will the money was placed in trust in the hands of a corporation, the income to go to his son, upon his death the principal to become the property of that son's children. Twice married, the son left no heirs of his body. A child had been informally adopted, and upon his father's death claimed the property. This was disputed by various nephews and nieces of the junior Roberts, but was allowed by the courts.

PERILOUS ADVENTURE OF A SQUIRREL.—Thursday morning last a little red squirrel, having been pestered considerably by the lads about the sawmill of Eben Webster & Co. on Marsh Point, Orono, took refuge for life by running up the large brick chimney near the mill. By clinging to the corner he kept foot hold so well that he succeeded in reaching the iron cap 100 feet from the ground. As more and more of the waste stuff from the mill was added to the furnace the chimney grew hotter and his situation became more and more disagreeable. He tried to descend upon the side of the chimney, but after getting down a few feet gave it up, turned about and went back. By this time the chimney top had become so hot that he must leave it, so after looking about carefully for a few minutes he evidently made up his mind that he must leap to save his life, and this he did, spreading out his legs and balancing himself so that he struck the ground about fifty feet from the base, uninjured, and immediately scampered off and secreted himself under a pile of boards a little distance away.—Bangor Whig.

OREGON.

St. Paul's Academy at Salem opened this week with forty students.

Sol Durbin, one of the oldest settlers in Marion county, will soon remove to Eastern Oregon.

Mrs. Shepherd has sold her farm four miles from Salem for $4,000 [illegible] coin, to Martin Rowley, Esq.

The Marshal of Salem has been instructed to sue everybody who hasn't paid for repairing their sidewalks.

Arnold Myers, of Salem, paid $30 to the Recorder for putting a bad head on Lewis Ross on Monday last.

Two young men had a pitched battle on the streets of Salem Tuesday last, but were separated by friends. No lives lost.

No drouth, chinch bugs, grasshoppers, locusts, potato bugs, weevil or caterpillars to hurt the crops or fruit of Oregon this season.

The Annual Conference of the M. E. Church South for Oregon will be held at Dixie, Polk county, beginning on the 10th of this month.

Old steamboating men predict that the Willamette river will have a good boating stage of water by the 15th of October as far up as Corvallis.

Quite a number of citizens of Grand Ronde are now on a visit to the Wallowa Valley for a short time, to hunt, fish, and enjoy themselves generally.

Four fights in Salem last Tuesday, and a cool day at that. As near as we can learn, one preacher, one reporter, two blacksmiths, two elderly gentlemen and others were participants.

On August 31st Mr. Robert English died at Salem of a disease of the stomach, supposed to have been caused by the presence of a small lizard which was thrown up a few days before his demise. Mr. E. has been in poor health for some years, and for the past six months confined to his bed. Aged 30 years.

The Blue Mountain Sentinel comes out this week under the new arrangement, Messrs. McComas & Stevens proprietors, and Mr. McComas editor. Mr. Bull made a good local paper of the Sentinel and his successors promise to still improve it. The first issue by them gives assurance that the promise will be made good.

The stock books of the Baker City and Umatilla fast freight and passenger line will be opened in a few days. Very encouraging letters from Umatilla have been received, and the enterprise seems to meet with much more favor than was at first anticipated. The principal office will probably be located at La Grande.

Miss McWaters, of La Grande, sent a portion of her sewing machine from the States by express and was not a little surprised to learn that the express charges amounted to the nice little sum of $58. She concluded to allow the express company the benefit of the contents of the package and got a blacksmith to make a similar wheel, which he did for $15.

The Oregon Medical Society met at Salem September 1st at 10 o'clock A. M. Dr. E. R. Fiske was called to the Chair and Dr. Hall chosen Secretary. The report of the Committee on By Laws and Constitution was read and unanimously adopted and Drs. Rowland and Jessup appointed a Committee on Order of Business and Drs. Warriner and McAfee on Permanent Organization. Owing to the absence of a proper representative from Portland the Society adjourned to meet at 11 A. M. on the 2d, at which time a full representation was expected to be present.

The Umatilla Indians usually leave their reservation as soon as they get through hunting and take to the woods, in the mountains, from whence they supply the citizens of Grand Ronde Valley with berries. This labor is performed entirely by the squaws—the noble red man of the forest being entirely too aristocratic to engage in this or any other kind of honest labor. During last week one of these squaws having found a locality where berries were plenty, left her pappoose sitting on a pair of blankets beside a bucket of berries while she proceeded to gather more. What must have been her sorrow and astonishment on her return to find that a bear had visited camp and ate up all her berries—and also, the little Indian.

THE SHARPEST EDGE OF MALICE.

SIX HORSES STABBED TO DEATH AND THREE MORTALLY WOUNDED IN THEIR STALLS BY AN UNKNOWN PERSON.

[From the N. Y. Tribune] Aug. [illegible]

A very cruel deed, the mutilation of nine horses by some malicious person during Monday night, was discovered early yesterday morning. Patrolman Barron, of the Nineteenth Precinct, while passing at [illegible] A. M. the stable of Patrick Dwyer, of No. 572 First ave., at the foot of Forty-ninth st., near the East river, noticed that the door was open. Looking into the stable he saw five horses lying dead in their stalls and four others evidently suffering great pain. A closer examination of the horses disclosed the fact that they had all been stabbed in the flanks with a long and broad knife. The knife had penetrated the intestines, inflicting horrible wounds. A man residing in a house near the stable said that he was awakened about midnight by hearing a singular noise proceeding from that direction. Listening for a moment, he heard something resembling a groan and then all was silent. He thought that one of the horses was sick, but did not imagine that such a deadly work was going on within the stable. The man who committed the crime evidently worked slowly, there being no false strokes of the knife and all the wounds being in the same mortal part of every horse. The owner of the horses, Patrick Dwyer, hired them out to men engaged in various kinds of business and also used two of the horses in hauling coal for the proprietors of a neighboring coal-yard. Two hours after the malicious act was discovered another of the horses died. The three remaining horses are all severely wounded, and probably only one can survive its injuries. Dwyer estimates the horses which have died were worth $2,000. He said that he had accumulated the money to buy the horses by the industry and savings of many years. The animals were uninsured. He informed the police that he could not remember that he had injured any man, or indeed crossed the pathway of any person who would have had the malice to kill the horses. The deed was without doubt committed through special malice against Dwyer, there being two other horses belonging to another man in the stable, which were unharmed. The Nineteenth Precinct police are endeavoring to obtain information in regard to the probable perpetrator of the crime. About three weeks ago an attempt was made to burn the stable, but John Dunn, watchman of the coal yard, discovered the fire in time and succeeded in stamping out the flames. Superintendent Hartfield, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, visited the stable yesterday and took Dwyer's statement. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals intend, Superintendent Hartfield states, to offer a reward of $500 for the discovery and conviction of the criminal.

TWO FOXES AND A PICKPOCKET.—One day Edward Fox went with his brother Charles James Fox to witness the first balloon ascent made in England. There was a great crowd and Fox detected a pickpocket attempting to relieve him of his watch. "My friend," said he, "you have chosen an occupation which will be your ruin at last." The thief burst into tears and exclaimed, "O, Mr. Fox, forgive me and let me go. I have been driven to this by necessity alone; my wife and children are starving!" Fox compassionately gave him a guinea and he went away with blessings on his lips. Soon after Fox wishing to know what time it was found his watch missing. "Good God!" he exclaimed, "my watch is gone!" "Yes," answered his brother, "I know it is. I saw your friend take it." "Saw him take it, and made no attempt to stop him?" "Really," said the general, "you and he appeared to be on such good terms with each other that I did not like to interfere."—The Galaxy for September.

MR. BEECHER'S STATEMENT.

(Concluded.)

MOULTON'S [illegible] AND [illegible]

Mr. Moulton had no occasion of presenting to me the kind side view of Mr. Tilton's character and conduct. On the other hand he complained that Mrs. Tilton had not trust for him [illegible] him and did not assist him in his great effort to help Theodore. I knew that in her trouble Moulton [illegible] literally hurt by the treatment of her husband. I was urged to use my influence with her to inspire confidence in Moulton and to lead her to take a kinder view of Theodore. Accordingly, at the instance of Mr. Moulton, three letters were written on the same day, February 7, 1871, on one common purpose—to be shown to Mrs. Tilton and to reconcile her to her husband—and my letter to her of that date was designed to effect the further or collateral purpose of giving force [illegible] of Mr. Moulton. This will be evident from the reading of the letters. The following is the full text of my letters of that date to me [illegible] by [illegible] of [illegible] I have not to this hour been permitted to see the [illegible] either of them or of any other papers which I had deposited with Moulton for safe keeping.

BEECHER TO MRS. TILTON.

BROOKLYN, February 7, 1871.

My Dear Mrs. Tilton: When I saw you last I did not expect ever to see you again, or to be alive many days. God was kinder to me than were my own thoughts. The friend whom God sent to me—Mr. Moulton—has proved above all friends that ever I had able and willing to help me in this terrible emergency of my life. His hand it was that tied up the storm that was ready to burst upon our heads.

I am not the less disposed to trust him from finding that he has your welfare most deeply and tenderly at heart. You have no friend, Theodore excepted, who has it in his power to serve you so vitally and who will do it with so much delicacy and honor. I beseech of you if my wishes have yet any influence let my deliberate judgment in this matter weigh with you. It does my sore heart good to see in Mr. Moulton an unfeigned respect and honor for you. It would kill me if he thought otherwise. He will be as true a friend to your honor and happiness as a brother would be to a sister.

In him we have a common ground. You and I may meet in him. The past is ended. But is there no future—no wiser, higher, holier future? May not this friend stand as a priest in the new sanctuary of reconciliation and mediate and bless you, Theodore and my most unhappy self? Do not let my earnest [illegible] fall of its end. You believe in my judgment. I have put myself wholly and gladly in Moulton's hands and there I must meet you.

This is sent with Theodore's consent, but he has not read it. Will you return it to me by his hands? I am very earnest for this step for all our sakes, [illegible] such a letter [illegible] to [illegible] objected to even [illegible] Your unhappy friend,

H. W. BEECHER.

BEECHER TO MOULTON.

February 7, 1871.

My Dear Mr. Moulton: I ask you to take a book which you will relish for which a more [illegible] I ought to relish. I wish I had more like it, and that I could send you one very many [illegible] repayment of your great kindness to me, for that can never be repaid not only by love which I give you freely. Many, many friends has God raised up to me but none of them has he ever given the opportunity of wisdom so to serve me as you have. My trust in you is implicit. You have also proved yourself Theodore's friend, and Elizabeth's. Does God look down from Heaven on three unhappier creatures that more need a friend than these? Is it not an imitation of God's intent of mercy to all that each one of these has in you a tried and proved friend? But only in you are we three united. Would to God who orders all hearts that by your mediation Theodore, Elizabeth and I could be made friends again. Theodore will have the hardest task in such a case, but has he not proved himself capable of the noblest things?

I wonder if Elizabeth knows how generously he has carried himself toward me. Of course I can never speak with her again except with his permission, and I do not know that even then it would be best. My earnest longing is to see her in the full sympathy of her nature at rest in him, and to see him once more trusting her and loving her with even a better than the old love. I am always sad in such thoughts. Is there any way out of this night? May it be day straight! Truly yours, always and with trust and love,

HENRY WARD BEECHER.

BEECHER'S THEORY OF HIS SUDDEN DEATH.

I have no recollection of seeing or hearing read the letter to Mr. Tilton of the same date. In my letter to Mrs. Tilton I alluded to the fact that I did not expect when I saw her last to be alive many days. That statement stands connected with a series of symptoms which I first experienced in 1856. I went through the Fremont campaign speaking in the open air three hours at a time three days in the week. On renewing my literary labors I felt I must have given way, and I very seriously thought that I was going to have apoplexy or paralysis or something of the kind. On two or three occasions while preaching I should have fallen in the pulpit if I had not held to the table. Very often I came near falling in the streets. During the last fifteen years I have gone into the pulpit I suppose 100 times with a very strong impression that I should never come out of it alive. I have preached more sermons than any human being would believe when I felt all the while that whatever I had got to say to my people I must say it then or I never would have another chance to use it.

If I had consulted a physician his first advice would have been, "You must stop work." But I was in such a situation that I could not stop work. I read the best medical books of symptoms of nervous prostration and overwork and paralysis, and formed my own judgment of my case. The three points I marked were—I must have good digestion, good sleep and I must go on working. These three things were to be reconciled, and in regard to my diet and stimulants and medicines I made the most thorough and searching trial, and as the result managed my body so that I could get the most work out of it without essentially impairing it. If I had said a word about this to my family it would have brought such distress and anxiety on the part of my wife as I could not bear. I have for many years so steadily taxed my mind to the utmost that there have been periods when I could not afford to have people express even sympathy with me. To have my wife or friends anxious about it and showing it to me would be just the drop too much. In 1863 I came again into the same condition just before going to England, and it was one of those reasons why I was willing to go. The war was at its height. I carried my country in my heart. I had the Independent in charge, and was working, preaching and lecturing continually. I knew I was likely to be prostrated again.

THE SHOCK OF THE TROUBLE.

In December 1870 the sudden shock of these troubles brought on again these symptoms in a more violent form.

I was very much depressed in mind and all the more because it was one of those things that I could not say anything about. I was silent with everybody. During the last four years these symptoms had been repeatedly brought on by my intense work carried forward on the underlying basis of so much sorrow and trouble. My friends will bear witness that in the pulpit I have very frequently alluded to my expectation of sudden death. I feel that I have more than once already been near a stroke that would have killed or paralyzed me, and I carry with me now, I have so often carried in years before this trouble began, the daily thought of death, and stand ready every hour to be [illegible] and [illegible] my labors into more welcome rest.

VERY ANXIOUS [illegible] 1871.

During the whole of the year 1871 I was kept in a state of suspense and doubt not only as to the future of the family for the reunion and happiness of which I had striven so earnestly but also as to the degree to which I might personally be subject to attack and misconstruction and the trouble be brought out, the church and magnified by publicity. The officers of the church sought to investigate Mr. Tilton's religious views and moral conduct and on the latter I had been deceived into a belief that he was not in fault. As to the religious views I still hoped for a change for the better, as it was proposed to drop him from the list of members for non attendance, and as he asserted to me his withdrawal, this might have been done, but his wife still attended the church and hoped for his restoration. I recollect having with him a conversation in which he dimly intimated to me that he thought it not unlikely that he might go back into his old position. He seemed to be in no mood to regret the past. And so when I was urged by the Examining Committee to take some steps, I said I am not without hopes that by patience and kindness Tilton will come back again into his old church work and be one of us again. I therefore delayed a decision upon this point for a long time. Many of our members were anxious and impatient and there were many tokens of trouble from this quarter. Meanwhile one wing of the female suffrage party had got hold of the story in a distorted and exaggerated form, such as had never been intimated to me by Mr. Tilton or his friends. I did not then suspect what I now know, that these atrociously false rumors originated with Mr. Tilton himself. I only saw the evil growing, instead of diminishing, and perceiving that while I was pledged to silence and therefore could not speak in my own defense some one was forever persevering in falsehood, growing continually in dimensions, and these difficulties were immensely increased by the affiliation of Mr. Tilton with the Woodhull clique.

MRS. WOODHULL COMES ON THE SCENE.

In May, 1871, Mrs. Woodhull advertised a forthcoming article shadowing an account of the disturbance in Mr. Tilton's family, but without using names. It was delayed ostensibly by Mr. Tilton's influence with Mrs. Woodhull until November, 1872. During this suspension of her publication she became the heroine of Mr. Moulton and Mr. Tilton. She was made welcome to both houses, with the toleration but not the cordial consent of their wives. I heard the most extravagant eulogies upon her. She was represented as a genius born and reared among rude influences, but only needed to be surrounded by refined society to show a noble and commanding nature. I did not know much about her, and though my impressions were unfavorable her real character was not then really known to the world. I met her three times. At the first interview she was gracious; at the second she was cold and haughty; but at the third she was angry and threatening, for I had peremptorily refused to preside at the lecture she was about to give at Steinway Hall. The most strenuous efforts had been made by both Mr. Tilton and Mr. Moulton to induce me to preside at this lecture and to identify myself publicly with Mrs. Woodhull. It was represented to me that I need not in so doing expressly give assent to her doctrines, especially with regard to the marriage relation, upon which point she was beginning to be more explicit, in opposition to the views which I, in common with all Christian men, entertained, but it was plausibly urged that I could preside at her lecture and introduce her upon the simple ground of advocating free speech and liberty of debate.

HE ABHORS FREE LOVE.

But as I understood that she was about to avow doctrines which I abhor I would not be induced by this plausible argument to give her public countenance, and after continuing to urge me up to the very day of the meeting without any distinct threats, but with the obvious intimation that my personal safety would be better secured by taking this advice, Mr. Tilton himself went over to New York and presided at the meeting where Mrs. Woodhull gave vent as I understand for the first time in public to a full exposition of her free love doctrines.

TILTON AND MOULTON HUMILIATE HIM.

The very thought that I should have been asked under any circumstances and upon any excuse to preside or be present at such a meeting, was inexpressibly galling to me. Whatever my astonishment might have been at the motive of Mr. Tilton and Mr. Moulton in asking such a thing, as to which I had not at the time so clear a perception as I now have, the request was, nevertheless, [illegible] one.

AN UNCLEAN CIRCLE.

At about the same time I found that the circle of which Mrs. Woodhull formed a part, was the center of loathsome scandals organized, classified and perpetrated with a greedy and [illegible] appetite for everything that was foul and vile.

THE FREE LOVERS AND REFORMERS.

The moment that any one, whether man or woman, became noted as a reformer or attained any degree of eminence among the advocates of liberal sentiments, it seemed as if those who [illegible] a monopoly of reform selected such persons as the special victims of charges and filthy slanders. I was by no means the only clergyman who was made the text for their private gossip, while it seemed as if no woman of any distinction in the land was left out of this pool of [illegible]. All the history of their past lives, and even the graves of their friends were raked over to furnish material and pretext for their loathsome falsehoods. It was inexpressibly disgusting to me, and I could not associate with these people. Yet Mr. Tilton and Mr. Moulton had some strange theory concerning the management of this particular affair, which always made it in their judgment necessary for them to maintain friendly relations with the group of human hyenas. From this circle and from Mr. Tilton's intimate associations with it many rumors and suspicions arose among my own congregation which led them to press me with questions and to originate investigations, especially into the affairs of Mr. Tilton, from whom alone, as they generally believed, the rumors against me originated. In this I was constantly and vehemently assured by Mr. Moulton that they were mistaken, and yet their zeal in my defense made them impatient of my silence and anxious to deal in a summary manner with Mr. Tilton. Had I allowed them to do this, it was obvious that Mr. Tilton would have been greatly enraged, that all his former unjust suspicions of me would have been confirmed, and that he would have had every motive which was necessary to induce him to break up the peace between us and to make some such public attack upon me as he has finally made.

I have no knowledge of Mr. Tilton's friendship for Victoria Woodhull other than that which the public already has. That he manifested his admiration for her publicly, that he wrote her biography, and that he presided at her Steinway Hall lecture, I mention only because by this he aroused against himself great indignation and odium.

The winter following (1871-72) Mr. Tilton returned from the lecture field in despair. Engagements had been canceled, invitations withdrawn and he spoke of the prejudice and repugnance with which he was everywhere met as indescribable. I urged him to make a prompt repudiation of these women and their doctrines. I told him that no man could rise against the public confidence with such a load. Mr. Tilton's vanity seldom allows himself to regard himself as in the wrong or his actions faulty. He could never be made to believe that his failure to rise again was caused by his partnership with those women and by his want of sensible work, which work should make the public feel that he had in him power for good. Instead of this he preferred or professed to think that I was using my influence against him, that I was allowing him to be traduced without coming generously to the front to defend him and that my friends were working against him, to which I replied that unless the laws of mind were changed not Almighty God himself could lift him into favor if these women were to be lifted with him. Nevertheless, I sought in every way to restore peace and concord to the family, which I was made to feel had been injured by me and was dependent on my influence for recovery.

TILTON'S GARBLED EXTRACTS OF BEECHER'S LETTERS.

But one thing was constant and apparent. When Theodore, by lecturing or otherwise, was prosperous he was very genial and affectionate to me. When ever he met rebuffs and was in pecuniary trouble he scowled threateningly upon me as the author of his troubles. And Moulton himself seemed at times to accuse me of indifference to Tilton's misfortunes.

It was in the midst of complications like these, though it may be that a part of these events happened shortly afterward, that in a thoroughly worried and depressed mood, discouraged by the apparent hopelessness of extracting Tilton from his difficulties, or of saving his family from the blight which he has since fastened upon it, with even more destructive effect upon its members than I then feared, I wrote a letter to Mr. Moulton, of which Mr. Tilton has given extracts even more wickedly garbled than his other quotations, for he has represented two extracts from this letter as constituting points of two separate letters, and has artfully given the impression that they were written in or after June 1873, whereas this letter was dated February 5, 1872.

He further says that this letter was written for the purpose of being shown to him. I had no idea of such a thing being done, as the letter shows plainly enough upon its face and did not authorize any such use of that letter, which was supposed by me to be written and received most sacredly. This letter was as follows, as I am now informed:—"An inspection of the original would doubtless refresh my memory concerning the circumstances, but this Mr. Moulton denies to me."

BEECHER TO MOULTON.

MONDAY, Feb. 5, 1872.

My Dear Friend: I leave town to-day and expect to pass through from Philadelphia to New Haven. Shall not be here until Friday.

About three weeks ago I met T—— in the cars going to B——. He was kind. We talked much. At the end, he told me to go on with my work without the least anxiety, in so far as his feelings and actions were the occasion of apprehension.

On returning home from New Haven, where I am three days in the week delivering a course of lectures to the theological students, I found a note from E—— saying that T—— felt hard toward me and was going to see or write to me before leaving for the West. She kindly added: "Do not be cast down. I hear this almost always, but the God in whom we trust will deliver us all safely. I know you do and are willing abundantly to help him and I also know your embarrassments." These were added words of warning, but also of consolation, for I believe E is beloved of God, and that her prayers for me are sooner heard than mine for myself or for her. But it seems that a change has come to T since I saw him in the cars. Indeed, even since he has felt more entirely the force of feeling in society and the humiliations which environ his enterprise, he has growingly felt that I had a power to help, which I did not develop, and I believe that you have participated in this feeling. It is natural you should. T is dearer to you than I can be. He is with you—all his trials lie open to your eye daily. But I see you but seldom, and my personal relations, environments, necessities, limitations, dangers and perplexities you cannot see nor imagine. If I had not gone through this great year of sorrow, I would not have believed that any one could pass through my experience and be alive or sane.

I have been the center of three distinct circles, each of which requires clear mindedness and peculiarly inventive or originating power, viz:

1. The great church.
2. The newspapers.
3. The books.

The first I could neither get out of nor slight. The sensitiveness of so many of my people would have made any appearance of trouble, or any remission of force an occasion of alarm and notice, and would have excited where it was important that rumors should die and everything be quieted. The newspaper I did roll off doing but little except give general directions, and in so doing I was continually spurred and exhorted by those in interest. It could not be helped. The Life of Christ, long delayed, had locked up the capital of the firm, and was not likely to suit them. Finished it must be. Was ever book born of such sorrow as that was? The interior history of it will never be written. During all this time you literally were all my stay and comfort. I should have fallen on the way but for the courage which you inspired and the hope which you breathed.

My vacation was profitable. I came back hoping that the bitterness of death was passed, but T's trouble brought back the cloud with even severer suffering. For all this fall and winter I have felt that you did not feel satisfied with me, and that I seemed both to you and T as contenting myself with a cautious or sluggish policy—willing to save myself but not to risk anything for T——. I have again and again probed my heart to see whether I was truly liable to such feeling, and the response is unequivocal that I am not. No man can see the difficulties that environ me unless he stands where I do. To say that I have a church on my hands is simple enough, but to have the hundreds and thousands of men pressing me, each one with his keen suspicion and anxiety so real to see inaccuracies which if not stopped, would break out in a ruinous defense of me, to stop them without seeming to do it, to prevent any one questioning me, to meet and allay prejudices against Theodore Tilton, which had their beginning years before this; to keep serene, as if I was not alarmed or disturbed, to be cheerful at home and among friends when I was suffering the torments of the damned, to pass [illegible] less nights often and yet to come up fresh and full for Sunday. All this may be talked about, but the real thing cannot be understood from the outside, nor its wearing and grinding on the nervous system.

God knows that I have brought more thought and judgment and earnest [illegible] into my efforts to prepare a way for T and E than ever I did for myself a hundred fold.

As to the outside public I have never lost an opportunity to soften prejudices, to refute falsehoods and to excite a kindly feeling among all whom I met. I am thrown among clergymen, public men and generally the makers of public opinion, and I have used every rational endeavor to repair the evils which have been visited upon Tilton, and with [illegible] success.

But the roots of this prejudice are long. The catastrophe which precipitated him from his [illegible] only [illegible] feelings that had [illegible] Neither he nor you, can be aware of the [illegible] of classes in society on other grounds than late rumors. I mention this to explain why I know with absolute certainty that no mere statement, [illegible] testimony or [illegible] will reach the root of affairs and reinstate them. Time and work will. But chronic evils require chronic remedies.

If my destruction would place him all right, that shall not stand in the way. I am willing to step down and out. No one can offer more than that. That I do offer. [illegible] me without hesitation if you can [illegible] way to his happiness and safety thereby. I do not think that anything would be gained by it. I would be destroyed, but he would not be saved, and the children would [illegible] their future clouded.

In one point of view I [illegible] on my part. Nothing can possibly be so bad as the horror of great darkness, in which I spend much of my time. I look upon death as sweeter [illegible] any friend I have in the world. Life would be pleasant if I could see that rebuilt which is shattered, but to live on the sharp and rugged edge of anxiety, remorse, fear, [illegible] and yet to put on all the appearance of serenity and happiness cannot be endured [illegible] long.

I am well nigh discouraged. If you, too, [illegible] trust [illegible] I am alone. I have not another person in the world to whom I could go. Well, to God I commit all—whatever it may be here, it shall be well [illegible] With sincere [illegible] for your heroic friendship, and with sincere affection, even though you love me not,

I am yours (though unknown to you),

H. W. B.

The letter of Mrs. Tilton, which is here partly quoted, is as follows:

TUESDAY.

I leave for the West [illegible] next. How glad I was to learn you were your own self Sunday [illegible] ing. Theodore's mind has been hard toward you of late, and I think he proposes [illegible] view with you by word or note before leaving home.

If so, be not cast down. I hear this almost always, but the God in whom we trust will deliver us all safely.

I know you do, and are willing abundantly to help him and I also know your embarrassments. I anticipate my Western trip, where I may be [illegible] with him, exceedingly.

THE TRIPARTITE AGREEMENT.

I now come in my narrative to give an account of the origin of the [illegible] what [illegible] tripartite agreement. Shortly after the foregoing letter was written, Mr. Tilton returned to the city thoroughly discouraged with the result of his lecturing tour. The Golden Age, which had then been [illegible] for about twelve months, had not [illegible] and was understood to be losing money. His pecuniary obligations were pressing, and although his claim against Bowen for the violation of his two contracts had a year previously been put under the exclusive control of Moulton, with a view of [illegible] ment, had not as yet been [illegible]

THE BOWEN CHARGES.

About this time, Mr. Moulton, who was sick, sent for me and showed me a [illegible] of a article prepared by Mr. Tilton for the Golden Age (and which has since been published in the Brooklyn papers), in which he embodied a copy of a [illegible] written by him to Mr. Bowen dated January 1, 1871, in which he charged Mr. B. with [illegible] scandalous accusations against my [illegible] character. This was the first time that I had ever seen these charges and I had never heard of them except by mere rumor. Mr. Bowen never having at any time said a word to me on the subject. I was aroused at this prospect [illegible] I did not then [illegible] the real [illegible] of giving [illegible] letter to such slander. My first [illegible] was that Mr. Tilton [illegible] cover of an [illegible] upon me in the name of another to open the way for a publication of his own [illegible] grievances. I [illegible] the [illegible] the stroke, but was [illegible] that it was not intended as a [illegible] to myself, but to Mr. Bowen. I did not any the less insist upon my protest against this publication. On its being shown to Bowen, he was thoroughly alarmed, and [illegible] consented to the [illegible] of arbitration to bring about an [illegible] The [illegible] of this proceeding was that Mr. Bowen paid Mr. Tilton over $7,000, and that a written agreement was entered into by Bowen, Tilton and myself of [illegible] concord and [illegible] It was [illegible] that the [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] of which had produced such an effect upon Mr. Bowen, and secured a happy [illegible] should be [illegible] without seeing light. It was an act of [illegible] peculiarly base, that this article was [illegible] to get into hands which would assure its [illegible] and that it was [illegible] I was [illegible] that every vestige of it had been destroyed. Nor until a [illegible] paratively [illegible] period did I understand how Mr. Tilton secured its publication without seeming to be himself responsible for the deed.

TILTON AND THE WOODHULL WOMEN.

Finally, after valuable [illegible] going to obtain [illegible] both from myself [illegible] my wife as the price of his support [illegible] the Woodhull women published [illegible] version of the Tilton scandal in November of 1872. The details given by them were so minute though so distorted, that suspicion was universally directed toward Mr. Tilton as the real author of this, which he so justly calls "a wicked and horrible [illegible]," though it is not a whit more horrible than that which he has now fathered and not half so wicked, because these abandoned women did not have personal knowledge of their story as Mr. Tilton has of his.

TILTON'S TRUE STATEMENT.

To rid himself of this incubus, Mr. Tilton drew up a voluminous paper called "a true [illegible]," but which was familiarly called "Tilton's case." I had some knowledge of its composition, having heard much of it [illegible] but [illegible] I only referred to as on file and others had not yet been [illegible] "[illegible]" for [illegible] statements was one of my familiar [illegible] Moulton used to tell me that the only way to [illegible] was to let him [illegible] on some such document and then to [illegible] on the document and [illegible] it. This "true statement" was a [illegible] plea in [illegible] of the prejudices excited by his Woodhull partnership. It was a muddle of garbled statements, manufactured [illegible] and downright [illegible] this paper—which I know he read to many, and am told that he read it to not less than fifty persons—he did not put hard to charge criminality upon his wife, on the contrary, he explicitly denied it and ascribed her purity, but charged me with improper overtures to her. It was this paper which he read to Dr. Storrs and poisoned therewith his mind, thus leading to the attempt to prosecute Tilton in Plymouth Church, the interference of [illegible] churches and the calling of the Congregational Council. After the Woodhull story was published and while Mr. Tilton [illegible] really [illegible] for a short time of protecting his wife I sent, through him the following letter to her:

My Dear Mrs. Tilton: I hoped that you would be shielded from the knowledge of the great wrong that has been done to you, and through you to universal womanhood. I can hardly bear to speak of it or allude to a matter than which nothing can be imagined more painful to a pure and womanly nature. I pray daily to you "that your faith fail not." You yourself know the way and the power of prayer. God has been your refuge in many sorrows before. He will now hold you in His pavilion until the storm be overpast. The rain that beats down the flower to the earth will pass at length, and the stem bent, but not broken, will rise again and blossom as before. Every pure woman on earth feels that this wanton and unprovoked assault is at you, but reaches to universal womanhood. Meantime your dear children will love you with double tenderness, and Theodore, at whom the shafts are hurled, will hide you in his heart of hearts. I am glad that revelation from the pit has given him a sight of the danger that was before hidden by specious appearances and promises of usefulness. May God keep him in courage in the arduous struggle which he wages against adversity, and bring him out though much tried like gold seven times fined. I have not spoken of myself. No words could express the sharpness and depth of my sorrow in your behalf, my dear and honored friend. God walks in the fire by the side of those He loves, and in heaven neither you nor Theodore nor I shall regret the discipline, how hard soever it may seem now. May He restrain and turn those poor creatures who have been given over to do all this sorrowful harm by those who have deserved no such treatment at their hands. I commend you to my mother's God, my dear friend. May His smiles bring light in darkness and His love be a perpetual summer to you. Very truly yours,

HENRY WARD BEECHER.

TILTON AFTER THE WOODHULL OUTBREAK.

The whole series of events beginning with the outbreak of the Woodhull story, repeatedly brought me a terrible accumulation of anxieties and perils. Everything that had threatened before now [illegible] up again with new violence. Tilton's [illegible] was once inexplicable and uncontrollable. His card to "a complaining friend" did not produce the [illegible] he pretended to expect from it, of convincing the public of his great magnanimity. Then his famous article and letter to Mr. Bowen made its appearance in the Eagle [illegible] that the publication of this tripartite covenant would have a good effect in counteracting the [illegible] stories about Mrs. Tilton and myself, which I [illegible] done [illegible] to disregard, but which his foolish card and the publication of that article had [illegible]

RAILWAY EARNINGS FOR 1874

The railway earnings for 1874 show how well the Pacific lines hold their own compared with the roads most prominent in the Atlantic States, as witness the comparison for the first six months, between the Union Pacific the Central Pacific the Illinois Central and the Erie

This table demonstrates that the railways traversing the continent are more productive than the average of lines in the United States notwithstanding an exceptional condition of affairs exists The Pacific Mail line of steamships are competing for the through freights and passengers and by great reduction of charges a very large amount of freight and many passengers that would naturally go by rail have been secured for the Isthmus route This has also compelled the Union and Central Pacific Companies to lower their tariff on both freight and passengers Nevertheless, so constant has been the growth of the local traffic, the aggregate receipts for 1874 show an increase over those of 1873

There is another remarkable feature about these Pacific roads, and that is the constant and enormous increase of their earnings as compared with the most successful of the great Eastern thoroughfares, as exhibited in the first five years, thus

The only through line across the Continent is the most successful railway in the United States, which means also the most successful in the world No other railway exhibits such a wonderful percentage of increase in its receipts each successive year nor does any other make so large a percentage of net earnings Last year the gross receipts were twenty-four and a quarter millions and the net earnings were thirteen and a half millions,—a sum equal to the ordinary interest on $225,000,000—which we venture to say was all of twenty per cent on the actual cost of the road

THE GENERAL VERDICT

The United Presbyterian thus speaks of Mr Beecher's defense against the charges of Tilton

> Every one must admit that the line of defense pursued by Mr Beecher is a plausible one and on the supposition that he tells the truth, which is not to be doubted without good reason, we think fair minded men capable of taking into consideration the whole case must come to the conclusion that at present there is no difficulty in looking upon him as an innocent man notwithstanding all the complications in which he is involved Yet it is proper to say that if Mr Beecher's answer had appeared in plain English, rather than in the stilted and semi romantic style it would have had greater effect

And the Banner says

> It Beecher's statement remain unchallenged or undisturbed by something stronger than has yet appeared against him, he may be considered as having made his case good in all its most serious aspects That there should remain some inexplicable things in a case so protracted and complicated should not be allowed to outweigh the great facts as they are now made to appear And then Beecher's eccentric character is to be kept in view in rightly judging him In his acting as in his preaching he is sui generis Common sense is not among his great gifts, and in this case, by his own showing, he appears to be very low in moral courage A man with good common sense and ordinary moral courage would never have been entrapped or held as he has been for so many years in such fearful peril

This, in general, is the tone of the religious press touching the scandal It is generally agreed that a case has not been made out against Beecher so far as concerns the most serious aspect of the case, the charge of actual adultery, and it is generally conceded, as in [illegible] it must be conceded, and as the C[illegible]ttee themselves concede in effect, that Mr Beecher is a weak and indiscreet man, wanting in some of the elements that are indispensable to the make up of a man strong to resist temptation, wise as a counselor, or safe to be trusted as an intimate family friend Not proven guilty on the specification which formed the gravamen of all the charges against him, he is shown to be a person whom no thoughtful and unbiased person would think possessed of sufficient delicacy in shunning the appearance of evil to fill a reasonable ideal of the spiritual guardian and confidential adviser in domestic trials

PROTECTION OF FISH AND GAME

From time to time during the past year, the OREGONIAN has called attention to certain defects in the Game Law of this State and suggested remedies Although the subject has scarcely been alluded to by more than one or two other papers, it has been pretty thoroughly discussed by gentlemen sportsmen in this city, and it is hoped that the Legislature may be induced at the approaching session to enact such measures as will effectually protect our fish and game from the extermination which now threatens them In older States indeed in thickly populated communities all over the civilized world prohibitory legislation of this nature is general and it is rigidly enforced, too Minnesota is a large State with a small population and yet it punishes violations of its game law (a synopsis of which we published several days ago), with the severest penalties

We have received from the office of The American Sportsman, (West Meriden Conn,) a call for a National Sportsmen's Association having for its object the procurement of intelligent and efficient legislation for the "Protection of Game Birds and Fish," to be held at Niagara Falls Sept 9 We append a circular accompanying the call

> OSWEGO, N Y August 1 1873
> The formation of a National Sportsmen's Association at this time is attracting the attention not only of persons devoted to the taking of animals fish and fowl for profit, but also of sportsmen and others who are desirous of preventing the wanton destruction of creatures used for the food or comfort of man
> When the primitive emigrants first arrived in this country they found the forests and streams swarming with animal life the result of centuries of undisturbed security From that day the destruction of these creatures began, first for the preservation of life and for raiment next as articles of sale and commerce or to be used in the arts of civilized life again, as population increased, the destruction increased for purposes of sport.
> This unrestricted slaughter has at length resulted in the total extermination in this country of some varieties of animals and birds, or driving them so far away from populated districts that isolated specimens are now only rarely found in the remotest wildernesses The beaver which was once so freely found in Pennsylvania no longer exists The deer which were once so plentiful in various sections of the country, are becoming rare and various other animals birds and fish are now the subjects of legislative enactments So great importance is attached to the preservation of fish, that many States have not only restricted the time of fishing but have passed laws and have made appropriations and appointed eminent citizens as Commissioners for the purpose of restocking streams and lakes which the cupidity of man has almost depopulated While in the general sense it is to the interest of society that this ruthless slaughter be stopped, on no one class of men does the duty of guiding public sentiment instigating harmonious international laws and attention to a proper regard for the same, devolve so much as on the sportsman The amateur who delights in hunting and fishing—not for gain but for healthful recreation—for recuperation—for exercise—is of all men the one who appreciates the importance of the law The statesman who sees the importance of cheap food and raiment for the people whose interests are his charge will use his endeavors to provide laws that future generations may not be deprived of the blessings which this generation is so wantonly destroying In this view the preservation of the fur seal in Alaska, the bison of the plains the fish in our rivers and streams and the crustacea on our coasts is of momentous importance
> With a view of procuring a concentration of interest and effort, it is now deemed desirable to form a national organization that the action of sportsmen may be harmonious and uniform in all districts of our common country and for this purpose a movement has been inaugurated by the New York State Association for the Protection of Fish and Game, in a preliminary meeting at Niagara Falls on September 9, 1874 to take such action as may then seem advisable
> A C MATTOON
> Chairman of New York State Committee

Without doubt an association of this kind properly conducted could do much to improve the present condition of affairs The organization of local societies would be the first step in the right direction We are satisfied that every genuine sportsman desires to see a sufficient game law strictly administered If the next Legislature will provide such a law we have no fears but that it would be enforced

A CANADIAN SENSATION

TRAGIC SHOOTING OF TWO LOVERS BY MISTAKE, BY AN INSANE CITIZEN SEEKING TO KILL HIS WAYWARD DAUGHTER.

A few days ago at the town of Guelph, Ontario, a most remarkable affair occurred that will likely eventuate in the death of a beautiful girl The facts as gleaned by a reporter of the Toronto Globe, who dates his report on the 11th inst., are these

John Hazle, a shoemaker who has lived for several years in town, and raised a family here, has for some time been very seriously troubled by the wayward and a girl of about sixteen, and has made repeated efforts to reclaim her, but to no purpose She seems to have been suffering from what would certainly appear to be a premature attack of nymphomania and was certainly tainted with insanity, as the following facts will fully establish

The sorrow and disgrace which the girl had brought upon her family so far affected Mr Hazle that to reclaim her from the vicious course she was pursuing he took advantage of the trace of insanity which was apparent in her actions to have her

the certificate having been signed by Drs Herod and Worsfold, and there can be no doubt from the report of these gentlemen that she was somewhat seriously affected An application was shortly afterwards made to the proper authorities for her admission to the Lunatic Asylum but no notice was taken of the appeal probably on account of the crowded state of the asylum at that time Mr Hazle thereupon placed her in the Magdalen Asylum in Toronto where it soon became evident that she was suffering from disease contracted in some unaccountable way, and she was removed to the hospital, from which she shortly afterwards made her escape, and for some time it was not known where she was

A few days ago, however, her father heard that she had been seen walking on the track of the W G & B Railway in company with some young men whom he had months ago warned her not to associate with He became and repeated the threat he had frequently made to the girl herself when at home, that if he caught her he would kill her and anybody whom he might find with her For some days he continued in this frenzied state and symptoms of the insanity which is believed to be hereditary disease began to show themselves On Thursday last he heard that she had been wandering about the country since her escape from the Magdalen, and that she was then somewhere in the neighborhood of the Catholic Cemetery, in company with some months ago He gave no intimation as to what his intentions were, but armed himself with a seven chambered revolver and started up the track in search of her

About three quarters of a mile up the track is situated the Union Cemetery of which Mr Calver is sexton, and a short distance from it is the Catholic Cemetery adjoining which is the house of Mrs Hurley The two families were intimate Miss Mary Calver had been on a visit to Mrs Hurley's house on Thursday evening and Mr Daniel Hurley had proffered his services to escort her home which she accepted As the two were walking along the track, that being the nearest way to Mr Calver's house, they heard footfalls behind them of which, however, they took no notice thinking that some boys were playing there as is usually the case at that hour Mr Hurley then turned to see who the boys were, when

and became conscious that he had been injured in the eye, but not for some moments did he realize that he had been shot, which was the case the ball having entered his forehead, just above the eye sufficiently near to affect his sight and for the moment to leave the impression that the eye itself had been pierced Immediately afterward, Hurley having fallen, he became conscious of two other shots being fired which afterward proved to be those

one of which entered her left cheek and passed out just below the ear She did not fall however and Hazle discharged another shot which lodged in her neck when she fell and the would-be-murderer dragged her alongside the track saying in a voice of the utmost anger

"LIE THERE AND DIE,"

and was on the point of firing at her again when the young lady, with a great presence of mind, said feebly but fortunately so that he could hear her 'I am Mary Calver which perfectly staggered the man, and in a voice of agony he exclaimed 'My God I've made a mistake'' He then lifted the girl up and asking her if she was able to walk, assisted her towards her father's house all the way expressing the utmost regret for what he had done. Mr Hurley in the meantime had managed to reach the house and was just telling the inmates of the occurrence when the girl arrived, accompanied by Hazle who as soon as the family put in an appearance made his escape and has not since been heard of

Some of the family immediately drove to the residence of Dr Herod who promptly responded to the call, and rendered all the assistance in his power Soon after Dr Herod had left his office, a man left a note there of which the following is a copy

> DR HEROD—Some people have been shot Go to cottage at the back of the Catholic Cemetery next the railway track at once for God's sake.

The man was not recognized, and no clew has yet been obtained as to who he can be

Dr Herod reports to-night that he has extracted the ball from the head of the young man Hurley and unless brain fever supervenes he is likely soon to recover

With regard to Miss Calver he is not so sanguine as the ball which entered her neck took a downward and inward course, and though it is believed that it has lodged in the muscles in the lower part of the neck it may have ranged either further in or further down, in which case it may even if she recover prove very troublesome Should inflammation of the parts ensue it is feared the case will prove fatal as the girl is now in such a low condition that the least turn might alter all the hopes and calculations of Dr Herod

Up to the present

NOTHING HAS BEEN HEARD OF HAZLE,

and it is believed he is hiding in the bush about four miles from here in the neighborhood of Shirley's Block with the hope of meeting his daughter who is also supposed to be prowling about the same neighborhood If he should happen to meet her there can be little doubt that he will kill her and afterwards himself, as his position now has become such that he would be

regardless of the consequence, which could not be worse than what he must now expect should he be captured Meantime an active search is being made for him and the police in the surrounding towns and villages have been notified

Hazle is an old soldier has a pension and has hitherto borne an irreproachable character He has a wife and four children in this town

Great sympathy is expressed for the two injured persons and their families, as well as for the family of the would be murderer Pity is also felt for Hazle himself the circumstances leading to the commission of the deed being of such an exceptionally painful character that as no lives have as yet been sacrificed a strong feeling exists for looking with a lenient spirit on the crime

THE STAGE

The grand farewell [illegible] Bishop last evening at [illegible] complete success and a [illegible] of the merit and talent of [illegible] artist on the part of our [illegible] The [illegible] cious room was well filled, and no lack of enthusiasm or appreciation was manifested on the part of the audience The [illegible] with her usual warmth and [illegible] tion from "Norma," "My [illegible] "La Catatumba," and others, [illegible] hearts so our [illegible] She sang [illegible] and effect the celebrated trumpet [illegible] the Bright Seraphim," from [illegible] of Sampson," accompanied by Mr. [illegible] Bray with the cornet obligato, which [illegible] a storm of applause Other [illegible] programme, which has been published, was rendered in a very acceptable manner During the evening's performance [illegible] appeared in two ballads, [illegible] for the young vocalist an encore. Mr. R. G. Hill sang the serio-comic ballad "As I'd Nothing Else to do" in a style which compelled that gentleman to appear [illegible] the curtain Mr A Wilkie in a number of his popular selections In all human probability, the public will never have the privilege or pleasure of hearing the silvery tones of the great [illegible] again This evening she will depart on the steamer for San F[illegible] and soon after will sail for Australia. She will carry hence the warmest wishes of [illegible] friends and admirers, in whose hearts [illegible] Bishop has won a niche, which neither [illegible] nor distance can efface. The kindly [illegible] tions connected with this, her last, visit among us we trust, will be cherished in the [illegible] and memories of those who have listened to [illegible] long years after her voice has hushed in the stillness of the grave and her great musical career on earth has been brought to a close

FIRE MATTERS.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

We are requested by the Board of Directors of the Public Schools of the city to give the following information for the benefit of those interested

The boundary lines drawn for the division of the District will begin at the center of the streets and run as follows Between the Central and Harrison street buildings Columbia street from the river back Between the Central and North building, Stark street from the river to West Park thence north on West Park to Washington thence west on Washington to Ninth thence south on Ninth to Alder thence west on Alder to the gulch back of the city All pupils residing west and north of the gulch will attend the North School

These lines have been drawn with reference to the convenience of the patrons of our public schools after a careful and thorough canvass of the number and exact locality of the pupils of the district

All pupils are required to attend school in their respective divisions and no deviation will be made from this rule

Pupils may attend the High School from any portion of the district The services of Rev John Rosenberg have been secured to take charge of the German language in the High School

Schools will open on Monday September 7th 1874 and it is very desirable that all pupils intending to become members of the public schools will be in attendance promptly at the beginning of the session

CHILDREN'S TEMPERANCE SOCIETY.

At a meeting called at the close of Dr J S Haskell's lecture at the Oro Fino Theater on Monday evening, August 31st, a temperance organization was formed called the Portland Band of Temperance Warriors

The names of thirty five boys from eight to fifteen years of age were enrolled as members of the Band It was arranged that they meet on Tuesday evening of each week at Nonpareil Hall, corner of Madison and First streets at 7 30 P M C A Wheeler was elected President and Mrs C A Coburn Secretary Any person may become an honorary member by the payment of one dollar into the funds of the Band

The object of this organization is to induce boys and girls to take a pledge of total abstinence and to surround them with such influences as will enable them to form strict temperance habits that shall be to them a bulwark of safety when they are assailed by storms of temptation Those who are desirous of having these influences thrown around their children (and who, indeed is not?) are most earnestly and cordially invited to send them to Nonpareil Hall on next Tuesday evening at 7 30 o'clock MRS C A COBURN, Sec'y

WAN LEE AS A PRINTER'S "DEVIL."

BY BRET HARTE.

It was deemed advisable for the next three weeks to keep Wan Lee closely confined to the printing-office and the purely mechanical part of the business. Here he developed a surprising quickness and adaptability, winning even the favor and good will of the printers and foreman who at first looked upon his introduction into the secrets of their trade as fraught with the gravest political significance He learned to set type readily and neatly his wonderful skill in manipulation aiding him in the mere mechanical act and his ignorance of the language confining him simply to the mechanical effort—confirming the printer's axiom that the printer who considers or follows the ideas of his copy makes a poor compositor He would set up deliberately long diatribes against himself composed by his fellow printers and hung on his hook as copy and even such short sentences as "Wan Lee is the devil's own imp" "Wan Lee is a Mongolian rascal" and bring the proof to me with happiness beaming from every tooth and satisfaction shining in his huckleberry eyes

It was not long however, before he learned to retaliate on his mischievous persecutors I remember one instance in which his reprisal came very near involving me in a serious misunderstanding. Our foreman's name was Webster and Wan Lee presently learned to know and recognize the individual and combined letters of his name It was during a political campaign and the eloquent and fiery Col Starbottle, of Siskiyou had delivered an effective speech which was reported especially for The Northern Star. In a very sublime peroration Col Starbottle had said "In the language of the god-like Webster I repeat"—and here followed the quotation which I have forgotten Now, it chanced that Wan Lee looking over the galley after it had been revised saw the name of his chief persecutor and of course imagined the quotation his After the form was locked up Wan Lee took advantage of Webster's absence to remove the quotation and substitute a thin piece of lead of the same size as the type, engraved with Chinese characters making a sentence which I had reason to believe was an utter and abject confession of the incapacity and offensiveness of the Webster family generally and exceedingly eulogistic of Wan Lee himself personally

The next morning's paper contained Col Starbottle's speech in full in which it appeared that the god-like Webster had on one occasion uttered his thoughts in excellent but perfectly enigmatical Chinese. The rage of Col Starbottle knew no bounds I have a vivid recollection of that admirable man walking into my office and demanding a retraction of the statement

"But my dear sir" I asked "are you willing to deny over your own signature that Webster ever uttered such a sentence? Dare you deny that with Mr Webster's well-known attainments a knowledge of Chinese might not have been among the number? Are you willing to submit a translation suitable to the capacity of our readers and deny upon your honor as a gentleman that the late Mr Webster ever uttered such a sentiment? If you are sir I am willing to publish your denial"

The Col was not and left highly indignant

Webster, the foreman took it more coolly Happily he was unaware that for two days after Chinamen from the laundries from the gulches from the kitchens, looked in the front office door with faces beaming with sardonic delight that three hundred extra copies of the Star were ordered for the wash houses on the river He only knew that during the day Wan Lee occasionally went off into convulsive spasms and that he was obliged to kick him into consciousness again A week after the occurrence I called Wan Lee into my office

"Wan" I said, gravely "I should like you to give me for my own personal satisfaction a translation of that Chinese sentence which my gifted countryman the late god like Webster uttered upon a public occasion" Wan Lee looked at me intently and then the slightest possible twinkle crept into his black eyes Then he replied, with equal gravity

"Mishtel Webstel,—he say, 'China boy makee me belly much foolee.' China boy makee me heap sick'" Which I have reason to think was true—Wan Lee, the Pagan. Scribner's for September

(Concluded from First Page.)

[illegible] to resolve at the tender mercies of Mr. Moulton I urged him to get from the gentlemen who held the tripartite covenant a copy of it for us, when suddenly Mr. Wilkeson came out with it on his own responsibility. Its publication in this manner I made strenuous but unavailing efforts to prevent. He had originally kept a copy of it. (Everybody in this business seems to have copies of everything except myself.) On the appearance of that paper Theodore went into a rage. It put him, he said, in a false position before the public, and he said he would publish another card giving a statement something like what he afterwards wrote to Dr. Bacon—that is, as I recollect the matter, declaring that I had committed an offense and that he had been the magnanimous party in the business. It was necessary to decide what to do with him. Moulton strongly urged a card from me exonerating Theodore. I could honestly do so from the authorship of the [illegible] or scandals detailed in his article to Mr. Bowen and alluded to in the covenant.

THE ALARM SOUNDED.

I said I would think it over and perhaps write something. This was Friday or Saturday. The covenant appeared on Friday morning and the alarm was sounded on me immediately that Theodore would do something dreadful if not restrained. On Sunday I had made up my mind to write to Mr. Moulton the following letter, garbled extracts of which are given in Mr. Tilton's statement:

BEECHER TO MOULTON.

SUNDAY MORNING, June 1, 1873.

My Dear Frank: The whole earth is tranquil and the heaven is serene, as befits one who has about [illegible] his world. I could do nothing on Saturday. My head was confused. But a good sleep has made it like crystal. I have determined to make no more resistance. Theodore's temperament is such that the future even if temporarily earned would be absolutely worthless, filled with abrupt changes and rendering me liable at any hour or day to be obliged to stultify all the devices by which we saved ourselves.

It is only fair that he should know that the publication of the card which he proposes would leave him far worse off than before.

The agreement was made after my letter through you was written. He had had it a year. He had condoned his wife's fault. He had enjoined upon me with [illegible] and solemnity not to betray his wife nor leave his children to a blight. I had honestly and earnestly joined in the purpose. Then this settlement was made and signed by him. It was not my making. He revised his part so that it should wholly suit him and signed it. It stood unquestioned and unblamed for more than a year. Then it was published. Nothing but that. That which he did in private, when [illegible] public excited him to fury, and he charges me with making him appear as one graciously pardoned by me. It was his own deliberate act with which he was perfectly content till others saw it, and then he charges a grievous wrong on me.

My mind is clear. I am not in haste. I shall wait for the public a statement that will bear the light of the judgment day. God will take care of me and mine. When I look on earth it is deep night, when I look to the heavens above I see the morning breaking. But oh that I could put in golden [illegible] my deep sense of your faithful, earnest, unwearying fidelity—your disinterested friendship! Your whole life too, [illegible] of God's [illegible]. It is such as she that [illegible] hood. Now, Frank, I would not have you [illegible] any more energy on a hopeless task. With such a man as T[illegible] there is no [illegible] for any [illegible] depend upon him [illegible] he does not know how to govern it [illegible] the undercurrent that rules him itself. With ardent affection he cannot love long that which does not repay him with admiration and [illegible]. With a strong theatric nature, he is constantly [illegible] upon with the idea that a position, a great stroke, a coup d'etat is the way to [illegible]. Beside, there he has a hundred good things about him, but [illegible] named traits [illegible] him absolutely unsafe. Therefore there is no use in further trying. I have a strong [illegible] and it brings great peace with it, that I am [illegible] my last [illegible] and preaching my last [illegible] God, I thank thee! I am [illegible] to see rest and triumph. The pain of life is but a moment; the glory of the everlasting [illegible] is inconceivable [illegible]. Oh, my beloved Frank! I [illegible] know you [illegible] and forever hold fellowship with you, and look back and smile at the past. Your loving, H. W. B.

"WORRIED OUT" [illegible] UNTO DEATH.

There are intimations at the beginning and end of this letter that I felt the approach of death. With regard to that, I merely refer to my previous statement concerning my bodily symptoms and add that on this day I felt symptoms upon me. The main point is that I was worried out with the whole business and would have been glad to escape by death, of which I long had little dread. I could see no end but [illegible] to the accumulation of torture, but I resolved to stop short and waste no more time in making "matters worse." I felt that Mr. Moulton had better stop too and let the whole thing come out. I determined then to make a full and true statement which I now make, and leave the result with God.

NOT TO BETRAY THE WOMAN.

Mr. Tilton had repeatedly urged me, as stated in my letter, not to betray his wife, and I felt bound by every sense of honor in case I should be pressed by inquiries from my church or family as to the foundations of rumors which might reach them to keep this promise. By this promise I meant only that I would not betray the excessive affection which his wife as I [illegible] had conceived for me and had confessed to him. It certainly did not refer to adultery. If there had been such a fact in existence its betrayal would have ruined me as well as her, and a pledge not to betray myself would have been too absurd to be mentioned in this letter. In reply to this note, which was calm and reserved rather than gloomy, Mr. Moulton wrote that same day, in a letter of three and a half sheets of copy paper. He began as follows:

MR. MOULTON'S LETTER.

My Dear Friend: You know I have never been in sympathy with the mood out of which you have often spoken as you have written this morning. If the truth must be spoken, let it be. I know you can stand if the whole case was published to-morrow and in my opinion it shows a selfish faith in God.

Having proceeded thus far Mr. Moulton seems to have perceived that the tone of this [illegible] was rather likely to determine me in my determination to publish the whole case than otherwise, and as this was opposed to the whole tone of his policy he crossed out with one dash of the pencil the whole of this and commenced anew writing the following letter:

FRANK TO BEECHER.

SUNDAY, June 1, 1873.

My Dear Friend: Your letter makes this first Sabbath of summer dark and cold like a vault. You have never inspired me with courage or hope, and if I had listened to you alone my hands would have dropped helpless long ago. [illegible] don't be in to be in the danger to-day that [illegible] faced you many times before. If you now look it square in the eyes it will cower and slink away again. You know that I have never been in sympathy with, but that I absolutely abhor the unmanly mood out of which your letter of this morning came. This mood is a reservoir of mildew. You can stand if the whole case was published to-morrow. In my opinion it shows only a selfish faith in God to go whining into Heaven, if you could, with a truth that you are not courageous enough with God's help and faith in God to try to live on earth. You know that I love you, and because I do I shall try and try and try as in the past. You are mistaken when you say that Theodore charges you with making him appear as one graciously pardoned by you. He said the form in which it was published in some of the papers made it appear, and it was from this that he asked relief. I do not think it [illegible] a letter which will cover the case. May God bless you. I know He will protect you. Yours,

FRANK.

In the haste of writing Mr. Moulton apparently failed to perceive what he had written in the first instance on one side of a half sheet of paper, and used the other side of that half sheet for the purpose of the letter which he sent in the shape he had given [illegible] that there was nothing in the whole case on which I could not safely stand. He treated my resolution as born of such morbid de[illegible] as he had often reproached me for and urged me strongly to maintain my faith in him. Tilton yielded to his persuasion and graciously allowed himself to be soothed by the publication of a card exonerating him from the authorship of the base lies to which the tripartite covenant referred. So once more and this time against my calmer judgment, I patched up a hollow peace with him.

TILTON'S BLACKMAILING.

The full truth of this history requires that one more fact should be told, especially as Mr. Tilton has invited it. Money has been obtained from me in the course of these affairs in considerable sums, but I did not at first look upon the [illegible] which I should contribute to Mr. Tilton's pecuniary wants as savoring of blackmail. This did not occur to me until I had paid perhaps $2,000. Afterward I contributed at one time $5,000. After the money had been paid, over in five $1,000 bills—to raise which I mortgaged the house I live in—I felt very much dissatisfied with myself about it. Finally a square demand and threat were made to me by my confidential friend that if $5,000 more were not paid Tilton's charges would be laid before the public. This I saw at once was blackmail in its boldest form and I never paid a cent of it, but challenged and requested the fullest exposure. But after the summer of 1871 I became inwardly satisfied that Tilton was inherently and inevitably a ruined man. I no longer trusted either his word or his honor. I came to feel that his [illegible] was but a [illegible] and his professions of friendship treacherous. He did not mean well by me nor by his own household; but I suffered all the more on this account. As he had grown up under my influence and in my church I could never free myself from a certain degree of responsibility for his misdoings such as a father feels for a wrong-doing son; and in times of great mental depression this feeling sometimes amounted almost to torture. Among the last desperate efforts to rescue him from overwhelming himself, his family, myself, the church and the whole community with the foul flood of scandal which he had by this time accumulated were those [illegible] with the charges of Mr. West and the subsequent proceedings of the Examining Committee of the church. The prosecution of Mr. Tilton I felt bound to prevent. In any form I would strive to prevent the bringing forth of a scandal, but in that form it was peculiarly distasteful. It presented no square issue upon which my guilt or innocence could be tried. It was a roundabout issue on which Mr. Tilton could have escaped possibly by showing that he believed the stories he told about me or that he had not circulated them, or by the mere failure on the other side to prove that he had done so, or by the decision that he was a monomaniac and not responsible. Any such half way decision would leave me in the attitude of overthrow and yet no party to the case. Moreover I felt that Mr. Tilton thought I was setting my church against him and I was bound he should not think that, for if it had not been for me he would have been dropped two years before for non-attendance, and for his distinct notice to me that he was out of the church. I had got the Examining Committee to postpone the action because he was letting his wife still attend the church and I thought that would gradually influence him for good. Indeed, he had deluded me with hopes that he would give up his bad women associates and reform his life.

BEECHER READY TO RESIGN.

I felt that we had no right to claim him as a member under the circumstances for the sole purpose of his public trial. Mr. Moulton insisted that everything must be done to prevent that trial as the Examining Committee was likely to be equally divided whether the facts sustained Mr. Tilton's plea, whether he was out of the church or not. I was so determined to carry out my pledges to Mr. Moulton for him and do all in human power to save him even from himself, that I was ready to resign if that would stop the scandal. I wrote a letter of resignation not referring to charges against me but declaring that I had striven for years to maintain the secrecy concerning a scandal affecting a family in the church and that as I had failed I herewith resigned. This letter was never sent. A little calmer thought showed me how futile it would be to [illegible] the trouble—a mere useless self sacrifice. But I now think Mr. Moulton possibly he copied it. I have [illegible] the original of it in my [illegible]. If I could at the moment remember any of the other letters which I have written to Mr. Moulton I would do so. If he has preserved all my effusions of feeling he must have a large collection. I wished him to bring them all before the Committee, [illegible] glad to get such hints as they may [illegible] to refresh my recollection of facts and sequences. I have no fear of their full and fair publication, for though they would doubtless make a sad exposure of my weakness, grief and [illegible], they do not contain a line confessing such guilt as has been charged upon me, or a word inconsistent with my innocence, nor any other spirit than that of a generous remorse over a great and more and more irreparable evil. But however intense and numerous may be these expressions of grief, they cannot possibly overstate the anxiety which I constantly felt for the future (the perils of which it is now clear I did not exaggerate), nor the sorrow and remorse which I felt originally on account of the injury which I supposed I had unwittingly done to a beloved family and afterwards for the greater injury which I became satisfied I had done by my unwise, blind and useless efforts to remedy that injury—only, as it proved, at the expense of my own name, the happiness of my own family and the peace of my own church.

BEECHER TO THE COMMITTEE—NOW [illegible]

Gentlemen of the Committee: In the note requesting your appointment I asked that you should make full investigation of all sources of information. You are witnesses that I have in no way influenced or interfered with your proceedings or duties. I have wished the investigation to be so searching that nothing could unsettle its results.

I have nothing to gain by any policy of suppression or compromise.

For four years I have borne and suffered enough and I will not go a step further. I will be free. I will not walk under a rod or yoke. If any man will do me a favor, let him tell all he knows now.

Wheat in [illegible] by mail advices from San Francisco [illegible] 1st of August. Compared with the same time last year the outside rates are 1s 3d lower.

In monetary circles there is but little movement in any direction. Applications for loans are made sparingly and when accompanied by first class collateral are promptly met on moderate terms; but yet the work of improvements and manufacturing enterprises is delayed for want of means as those engaging in them cannot see their way clear in paying the rates which bankers and capitalists hope to realize from those engaged in traffic.

Money continues very abundant in San Francisco and is supplied at bank at 10½ per cent, with the loan societies at 9a10, with exceptional lots at 8. Leading private capitalists find more grain and other collaterals offering which take up their funds at 1 per cent. This branch of business will probably improve. The demand generally is not so active, business being very dull and the grain crops particularly inert. The withholding of the crops now lessens the present demand for money but will be felt later in the diminished supply.

Our Grain Fleet and Market.

There are in port and in the river thirteen grain carrying vessels, two of which, the Beulah and Ida F. Taylor, will take other cargoes, as the wheat is so slow in coming forward. Two others, the ships Sallara and Middlesex, the latter lying at Astoria, are not as we are informed, under charter, but come seeking cargoes. The others are all under charter either to parties here or in San Francisco. They are all waiting a change in the condition of the grain market, which change it is predicted will take place very soon now as harvesting is about over and some few lots of wheat have in the past few days made their appearance in this market. It must necessarily however be some weeks before all these vessels can get off as it will require nearly half a million bushels of grain to load them, and the receipts here so far do not exceed 20,000 bushels.

A Washington county farmer who called on us to-day says the wheat growers are now in the very busiest part of the season threshing, requiring all the available help and affording but little chance to place their grain in market just now, but that as soon as the rush is over, a great deal of wheat will be offered at fair prices. The farmers know very well what the European markets will bear at present cost of shipping and we believe that when they are ready to sell only a very few of them will hold for a price to pay which would entail great loss on shippers. Not many expect prices to run up to last year's figures nor do we know that as a rule they anticipate an advance on current rates, but they say in almost every case, "We are not ready yet to sell."

General Trade.

The volume of trade in the local market during [illegible] fully up to the average for the season and merchants still express [illegible] in the future of business and the expectations of a prosperous fall trade. Prices as a rule have been quite steady, though a few exceptions are noted. Woolen goods are still held firm at the advance made three weeks ago. Coffees have slightly declined at the East and are some weaker on this coast. Sugars and syrups are in fuller supply in this market, and sales liberal at current rates.

In the produce market but few changes are noticed; the supply of fruits and vegetables is ample and in fact exceed the demand, bringing prices down to a figure within the reach of all.

Boston Wool Market.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—Wool is in steady demand for all kinds and buyers are more anxious to secure desirable lots than for some weeks. The new clip of fleece wool is passing rapidly into hands of consumers and at the present rate of consumption the stock must become exhausted much earlier than for many years. The next month's supply of domestic wool it is expected will be very small and it depends on prices on this side whether any considerable supplies are imported for some time to come. The demand for wool in Europe and better prices realized are attracting supplies to that quarter. California wool firm and continues in steady demand at 40a[illegible]; very choice at 40[illegible].

Philadelphia Wool Market.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—Wool firm and in fair demand. Stock scarce. Cal fine and medium, [illegible]; Cal coarse 25a30.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—The wool market is firm with fair demand. Stock scarce.
